

April 4th, 1980

TO THE INDEFATIGABLE FIGHTER FOR PEACE

The ceremony of presentation of the Lenin Prize to L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, for his books "Little Land", "Rebirth" and "The Virgin Lands" and for his indefatigable struggle for peace was held in the Kremlin Sverdlov Hall. Members and Alternate Members of the Politbureau of the CPSU CC, prominent figures of literature and art are in the Presidium of the meeting. The ceremonial meeting was opened by Georgy Markov, Chairman of the Committee for Lenin and State Prizes in the field of literature, art and architecture of the USSR Council of Ministers. He stated that the books "Little Land", "Rebirth" and the "Virgin Lands" are of great significance and have inspired millions of people towards new deeds for the cause of triumph of Socialism and Communism. Georgy Markov read the Decree of the CPSU and the USSR Council of Ministers "About Awarding L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, the Lenin Prize". Colonel in retirement Pakhomov, a participant of battles on Little Land, former vice-commander of the political unit of the 18th Army... Hero of Socialist Labour Dovzhik, head of a brigade of tractor drivers of the "Shuysky" State Farm of the Tselinograd District... Laureate of the Lenin Prize Ovchinnikov, Vice-President of the USSR Academy of Sciences... Hero of Socialist Labour, Laureate of the Lenin Prize, poet Mejelaitis sincerely and cordially congratulated L.I. Brezhnev upon the high award and expressed deep gratitude for his constant concern for the welfare of our great Motherland. The floor is given to Laureate of the Lenin Prize L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet. (SOF) "First of all, allow me to express deep gratitude to the Committee for Lenin Prizes for the high Prize which has been awarded me. I also thank those, who have spoken here today for their kind words. This Lenin Prize is a literary prize. As you know, I am not a writer. I am a Party worker. But, as every Communist does, I consider myself mobilised by the Party propaganda, and I see it my duty to participate actively in the work of our press." L.I. Brezhnev emphasised that the duty of Communists, shock workers of the first five-year periods, of participants of the Great Patriotic War, of heroes of post-war rebirth is to pass on all their valuable experience to the young generation. L.I. Brezhnev stated the growing significance of problems for the further improvement of ideological work, of the socio-political, cultural, moral and aesthetic education. Concluding his speech, L.I. Brezhnev said: (SOF) "On my part, I shall go on doing everything required of me to ensure that the Leninist policy of our Party is successfully implemented - the policy of a steady rise in the living standard of our people, of guaranteeing peace and security for our country and of building the Communist society. It is worthwhile to live and struggle for this, and one must spare no efforts, nor grudge time for the sake of this."

M/PROS/ 622

10.431/R

April 4th, 1980

TO THE INDEFATIGABLE FIGHTER FOR PEACE

The ceremony of presentation of the Lenin Prize to L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, for his books "Little Land", "Rebirth" and "The Virgin Lands" and for his indefatigable struggle for peace was held in the Kremlin Sverdlov Hall. Members and Alternate Members of the Politburo of the CPSU CC, prominent figures of literature and art are in the Presidium of the meeting. The ceremonial meeting was opened by Georgy Markov, Chairman of the Committee for Lenin and State Prizes in the field of literature, art and architecture of the USSR Council of Ministers. He stated that the books "Little Land", "Rebirth" and the "Virgin Lands" are of great significance and have inspired millions of people towards new deeds for the cause of triumph of Socialism and Communism. Georgy Markov read the Decree of the CPSU CC and the USSR Council of Ministers "About Awarding L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet, the Lenin Prize. Colonel in retirement Pakhomov, a participant of battles on Little Land, former vice-commander of the political unit of the 18th Army... Hero of Socialist Labour Dovzhik, head of a brigade of tractor drivers of the "Shuysky" State Farm of the Tselinograd District... Laureate of the Lenin Prize Ovehimnikov, Vice-President of the USSR Academy of Sciences... Hero of Socialist Labour, Laureate of the Lenin Prize, poet Mejelaitis sincerely and cordially congratulated L.I. Brezhnev upon the high award and expressed deep gratitude for his constant concern for welfare of our great Motherland. The floor is given to Laureate of the Lenin Prize L.I. Brezhnev, General Secretary of the CPSU CC, President of the Presidium of the USSR Supreme Soviet. (SOF) "First of all, allow me to express deep gratitude to the Committee for Lenin Prizes for the high Prize which has been awarded me. I also thank those, who have spoken here today for their kind words. This Lenin Prize is a literary prize. As you know, I am not a writer. I am a Party worker. But, as every Communist does, I consider myself mobilised by the Party propaganda, and I see it my duty to participate actively in the work of our press." L.I. Brezhnev emphasised that the duty of Communists, shock workers of the first five-year periods, of participants of the Great Patriotic War, of heroes of post-war rebirth is to pass on all their valuable experience to the young generation. L.I. Brezhnev stated the growing significance of problems for the further improvement of ideological work, of the socio-political, cultural, moral and aesthetic education. Concluding his speech, L.I. Brezhnev said: (SOF) "On my part I shall go on doing everything required of me to ensure that the Leninist policy of our Party is successfully implemented - the policy of a steady rise in the living standard of our people, of guaranteeing peace and security for our country and of building the Communist society. It is worthwhile to live and struggle for this, and one must spare no efforts, nor grudge time for the sake of this."